I missed those of you that were unable to come to the movie last Sunday night, as it had a great message. A big thank you to Dwight & Shelly Franklin for donating the funds to go to the movie. Tonight's devo will be held in the activity building and I hope everyone will be able to attend.

"What fits your busy schedule better, exercising one hour a day or being dead 24 hours a day?"

"ENDORPHINS"

During cardiovascular exercise, the body reaches a point where it releases "feel-good" chemicals known as endorphins. One of the effects of endorphins is (among other things) to minimize minor aches and pains—which, in turn, encourages a person to continue exercising. This "high" can be experienced at different ranges—from a mild "good feeling" to a strong sense of euphoria, depending on how much an individual exerts himself. The result is that the person doing the exercise is encouraged to do more, and also is encouraged to make exercise a general habit.

Endorphins are not only responsible for aid in exercise, but also may prevent the body from experiencing excruciating pain in severe trauma. In the 1970s, this chemical was first discovered by scientists studying the drug morphine. Prior to the 1970s, emergency medical personnel were often amazed that some people with serious injuries were lucid enough to communicate and in apparent lack of pain. Researchers discovered that endorphins were an even more powerful chemical than morphine, but without the unpleasant side effects of drug addiction. Endorphins are now known, by scientists and emergency technicians alike, as the morphine made by the body.

Endorphins may also be released from other positive behaviors such as smiling, laughing, meditating, singing, listening to good music, and even eating good food. Is this ability of the body to provide chemicals that encourage good behavior not evidence of good design? Consider the following facts. First, endorphins are dispensed only when needed. Second, they are released only in the dosage that is required. Third, they are powerful enough to counteract strong pain. Fourth, they are not addictive. Fifth, they encourage good behavior. Sixth, a person must exert a certain amount of positive effort to enjoy their benefits. Those are some of the same types of standards that pharmaceutical companies use as they try to develop beneficial new medicines. The psalmist wrote, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made" (Psalm 139:14). How wonderful it is to know that the human body that God made for us has such incredible design!

Fellowship Luncheon Today

Monday Night For The Master tomorrow night.

From Dan's desk:

Our meeting in Groesbeck resulted in one responding to the invitation of Christ. It was good to be with the brethren again in such an effort. We had a good meeting. Attendance was great and numerous visitors came from all over the area. My thanks to Perry Hall for preaching for me last Sunday morning and a big thank you to the Deacons who conducted the service last Sunday night. I understand they did a great job, as well. We appreciate them and what they do for the congregation here. Thanks also to Owen for teaching the chapel class last Wednesday and to Millie Baur for teaching the ladies Class on Tuesday morning. Monday night for the Master resumes again tomorrow night. We are looking forward to the time we spend together in working for the Lord. We hope you can make the effort to be with us. The meal will take place at 6:15 P.M. and we will work for one hour following the meal. This is a great time of fellowship and an opportunity for us to work in God's Kingdom. We have a list of things that need to be done and we hope you can come and help. Please bring yard tools for those working outside. Please remember we are having our church fellowship luncheon today following the worship service. Please plan to stay. Visitors are always welcome. There will be plenty of food, so please plan to stay. The Children's Bible Hour has gotten off to a great start. Thanks to all who work with this program on Sunday evening.

God's Love

We do not see the wind,
We only hear it sigh;
It makes the grasses bend
whenever it goes by.

We do not see God's love,
But in our hearts we know
He watches over us
Wherever we may go.

We do not have to see
To know the wind is here;
We do not have to see
To know God's love is near.
